Police Board pposed

By CLIFF SMITH A New York City councilman said here today that a member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People ment of Colored People (NAACP) in Philadelphia opposes that city's Police Advisory Board for the same reasons that a policewoman opposes the Rochester board.

Dominick Corso, a Brook-Democrat, described the ladelphian as "an out-iding criminal lawyer" lvn Philadelphian standing whose opinion of the police review board there coincides with what Rochester Police-woman Rosemary L. Leary thinks about the local board.

"Miss Leary told me that there was no need for the board because if a policeman is alleged to have used excessive force he can be taken to court, charged before the district attorney, reported to the police chief or FBI or even brought to federal court for violation of civil rights," Corso said.

HE QUOTED the Philadelphia NAACP representative as insisting there was no need for the board. "He told me the board was useless," Corso said, "because any policeman who uses brutality is a criminal like anyone else, and we have courts to handle criminals." QUOTED the Philadel-

Corso and four other New York City councilmen first visited Philadelphia and are now visiting Rochester as visiting Rochester as members of mittee studying the back round and operation of olice review boards in other cities.

THE LOCAL BOARD, created in March 1963 as a result of growing Negro unrest over allegations of police harassment, discrimination and butfality has so far re-ARD, harassment, discrimina and brutality, has so far ceived 20 unofficial c and orutality, has so far re-ceived 20 unofficial com-plaints, all outside its jurisdic-tion, and two official ones. One of the latter is still being processed. In the other the board cleared a patrolman of the main charge but ques-tioned his "professional con-duct." duct."

Corso said that both Policewoman Leary and Patrolman Daniel Murphy, president of the Police Locust Club, told the visiting New Yorkers that the board has hurt police morale.

Corso, who heads the sub-committee, said Rochester NAACP members told him that they favored the board and that the absence of cases means that the board's mis-sion has been accomplished.
