14. Narrative (If officer is in plainclothes, describe own clothing. If tactic(s) used on subject were ineffective, explain reason(s) why.)

On 5/1/13, I was attempting to place (S) into custody with Ofc. Ferrigno for said charge. The (S), who was in a motorized wheel chair due to the fact that he had one prosthetic and one functional leg, refused commands to put his hands behind his back and allow officers to put handcuffs on him. The (S) began to swing his arms wildly and yelled that he wasn't going to jail unless it was in an ambulance. Ofc. Ferrigno deployed OC spray to (S)'s facial area with still no compliance from the (S). It was at that time that I pushed (S) and his wheelchair over and onto the ground from the right side of the chair. Once (S) was on the ground laying on his back, he continued to resist arrest by trying to swing his arms and strike officers. By this time, a large unruly crowd began to form around us and it was my belief that harm may be done to officers due to the fact that the above location has a history of assaults on police and unwillingness to follow lawful orders when asked. Due to the fact that I was on the ground with the (S) and that officers were not able to roll him onto his stomach for handcuffing due to his large size, I took my right elbow and performed a downward strike to (S)'s face. Since the crowd was closing in on officers, it was my intention to end the altercation as quickly as I could with the elbow strike. Furthermore, (S)'s head was the closest part of his body to me and the most open to my strike at the time. (S) was continuing to fight with officers; however, was able to be turned onto his stomach per Ofc. Ferrigno. The (S) still was trying to tuck his arms underneath his body to resist arrest. It was at that time that I attempted compliance from the (S) with a mandibular angle pressure point behind (S)'s right ear per departmental training with my right thumb. The (S) was not affected from the pressure point and continued to tuck his arms underneath his body to avoid handcuffing. I then performed a 3-point landing on (S)'s right side
