
STOP THE BUS STOP

Renaissance Square is the underground bus terminal, arts theater, and college campus combination to be built on the northwest corner of Main and Clinton. It's a bad idea that:

- Makes us less safe by being confined underground.
- Adds 10 minutes to each bus route because all the buses will need to go in one small location.
- Costs at least an estimated $230 million to build (and bus fares will likely be raised to pay for it all.)
- Ignores the fact that people wait for the bus around town along major roads and would enjoy more sheltered waiting areas above ground – especially in the winter.
